The Painting Department consists of a working Supervisor and five painters. Much like the painters on the Golden Gate Bridge they start at one end of the project and when they are through they start over at the beginning. In January they start in Building 1 and proceed through the buildings in numerical order. They refinish all railings and the exterior wood around windows and doors as needed. They repaint walls as needed. On a schedule they also paint exterior floor areas so that all such areas are painted every three years.

A second guard, sometimes referred to as the Rover, is employed from Memorial Day until the last Jazz Trax weekend in October. Not all of the guards work full time and some only work during the summer months. Their first responsibility is to monitor the fire alarm system and to be on the look out for fire. Their second responsibility is to make certain all systems such as the salt water system and the sewerage pumping system are functioning correctly. They have a written check list they must follow each shift in making certain the fire alarm and other systems are functioning. They are also responsible for making certain that only persons entitled to be at Hamilton Cove are on the project. They respond to emergencies and they report Incidents such as violations of the rules.
